ENGLISH WAR BRIDE WINS WARM WELCOME

Wilmington welcomed its third war bride last week when Mrs. Philip McLaughlin, wife of Philip McLaughlin of Lang Street, North Wilmington, arrived at Pier No. 90 in New York City, with their thirteen months old daughter, Janet, making the trip on the Queen Elizabeth. She is the former Iris Seccull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Secull, of Birmingham, England.

When asked how she enjoyed her trip across, the bride complained that she had been seasick about all the way over, but that the baby enjoyed the trip. She also was much surprised to find so much food here, as there is such a food shortage in England. She is anxiously awaiting the time when she can make the trip to Lowell and enjoy a day of shopping.

Mr. McLaughlin met his bride while serving in the Air Force as a corporal. The marriage took place in St. Benedict's Church, Rev. Edward Dixan officiating, on March 10th, 1943, in Birmingham. The bride was a member of the Women's Land Army during the war.

Corporal McLaughlin is the holder of six battle stars, the Presidential Citation cluster and the Good Conduct medal. He was a professional wrestler before entering the army.

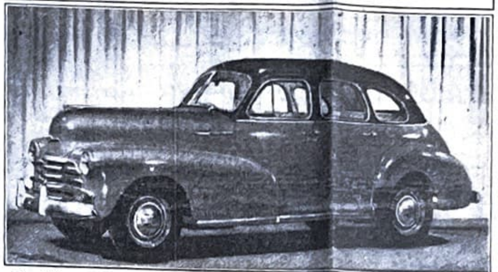
Smart Lines Characterize New Chevrolet



Re-styled for the new year, with emphasis on a more massive front end and a smoother sweep to body contours, the new Chevrolet will soon make its debut. New front-end grille and complementing bright work, as well as elimination of the body belt molding, have done much to give the new model an air of greater luxuriousness.

LOWELL DOLLAR DAYS

Super-value offerings in merchandise for personal and home use will prevail in Lowell Friday and Saturday when the members of the Merchant's Division of the Lowell Chamber of Commerce will reestablish their February Dollar Days. During this great two-day merchandising event, currency will take on added value as the merchants are determined to greatly increase the purchasing power of every dollar spent in their stores.

Thousands of shoppers throughout the Greater-Lowell trading area are familiar with these co-operative events, held semi-annually before the war but which because of governmental regulations on merchandise and sales promotions, have not been conducted for the past five years.

As in former years the opportunities to purchase at considerable savings will not be confined to merchandise selling at a dollar, but will include all types of home and personal necessities. Values such as have never before been offered in these stores will be found during February Dollar Days, Friday and Saturday.

Every effort has been made by the authorized stores to make the February Dollar Days successful not from the merchants point of view alone, but also for the thousands of thrifty shoppers who always take advantage of these merchandise events.

Everything is in readiness for the two days and Friday and Saturday when the Lowell stores conduct these February Dollar Days, the purchasing power of each dollar you spend in the official stores will be increased far above normal. Shop early to have full opportunity to take advantage of as many of the unusual values as is possible.

Savings Banks Deposits In Steady Climb

A net gain of $1¼ billion in deposits in the mutual savings banks in the United States during 1946 was reported today by A. George Gilman, president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks. This brings total deposits of mutual savings banks to $16.9 billions, the high point in 131 years of operation in this country.

HIGH PROPORTION

The volume of deposits secured by mutual savings banks amounted to almost 10% of gross savings as estimated by President Truman in his recent economic report to Congress. This is the highest proportion of total new savings to be entrusted to mutual savings banks in more than a decade.

There are now over 17¾ million accounts in mutual savings banks of which 14¼ million are regular deposit accounts and 3½ million are made up of the savings of school children and individuals in Christmas and other special clubs. The gain in depositors has been steady, with savings banks now serving one-half million more regular depositors than at the time of VJ Day. In addition another one-half million special depositors in school or club accounts have been added over the same period.

Surplus and guaranty funds continue to increase and at the end of 1946 were more than $1¾ billions. Thus the increase in deposits during 1946 was covered by an ample margin of surplus and guaranty funds.

EXPECTED TO CONTINUE

"Contrary to the fears expressed by some," stated Mr. Gilman in commenting on the report, "I expect a continuation of the accumulation of savings during 1947 at a rate comparable to the latter part of 1946. The ability of the American people to set aside savings in these days of high living costs is an indication that they recognize the need of building for future security upon an individual basis and of helping through the exercise of restraint and careful spending to bring about an adjustment in the level of prices."

INCOME TAX INFORMATION

Persons eligible to use the regular 1040 form as a short-form income tax return are those whose adjusted gross incomes are less than $5000 and who use the tax tables which the form provides for determining the amount of tax due.

By using the tax tables an individual is allowed about 10 percent of the adjusted gross income for deductible expenses such as charitable contributions, medical expenses, interest, taxes, and casualty losses.

If the allowable personal deductions are greater than the 10 percent standard deduction, the taxpayer should use the 1040 long-form and itemize these expenses if he wishes to obtain the full tax benefit from them. In such cases he does not use the tax tables but computes his own tax.

Husband and wife may file a joint short-form return and make use of the tax tables if the combined adjusted gross income is less than $5000. If they choose to file separate returns the short form may be used provided both use it.

Persons eligible to use the withholding receipt as a return but who wish to itemize their deductions or who want to make their own tax computations without waiting for the collector to do so may use the short-form 1040 return.

Forms 1040 have been mailed to individuals who filed returns on this form last year. The W-2 forms will be obtained, as before, from employers. Other who wish to obtain the 1040 forms may get them at the internal revenue office or any of its zone offices, or from post offices, banks or employers.

In making a short-form return only pages one and two are required. It is necessary to list the names of all persons for whom exemptions are claimed, the names of employers and the amounts received from each, and the adjusted gross income from all other sources. For the ordinary salary or wage earner with no business deductions, his total income is his adjusted gross income. Others with business deductions should use the schedules on page two.

Shooting Color In Wintertime

Back in the pioneer days when the only [illegible] for color photography [illegible] photographers tended to turn up their noses at the idea of using precious color film on a wintry snow scene.

It was all black and white, wasn't it? Wrong again. There's plenty of color in winter. It's a symphony of grays and browns and blues against a blue or blue-green sky with here and there a red barn or an evergreen.

Moreover, a transparency of a snow scene projected on a screen will give you the crisp feeling of winter—the brilliant sparkle of sunshine on ice and snow—far better than the best print can produce it.

Exposure For Color

Color photography is harder to do successfully than black-and-white. [illegible] Color film requires far more critical exposure calculations. You can't allow a margin for error in exposure because the latitude of color film (its ability to record wide extremes of light and shadow) is more limited than in monochrome film.

However, most outdoor scenes, you will find, are sufficiently alike in their illumination range so that the majority of shots can be made with just about the same exposure. For front lit snow scenes it will probably average about 1/50 at f/8 for normal subjects in bright sunlight. A little more exposure for darker subjects and always in sunlight.

If you're not sure of yourself, you will have to experiment a bit. Try taking a reading for the highlights alone and then the shadows. Shoot halfway between. Also try using a half a stop more than is indicated from a general reading. Should your prints show too much blackness, regardless of exposure, you will probably have better luck using a [illegible]

Use the Sun To Advantage

If you are not yet a canny old color worker, you will usually shoot with the sun behind you to produce a rather flat lighting without extreme contrasts.

However, the full value of color and its ability to reproduce texture and the beautiful range of colors in snow lights and shadows comes when side lighting is used. But remember to increase the exposure accordingly. To avoid more contrast than your color film can handle, keep the heavy shadows down to a minimum or find a way to illuminate the shadow side of models, etc., by reflectors.

Sooner or later you will discover that the lower the sun is in morning or afternoon, the warmer color there is in a [illegible]. The shadows are more purple than blue. The sunlight on snow and trees and buildings becomes golden, then pink. The colors change minute by minute. It's hard to get a color picture at this time of day, but when you do get a good one, it's a prize.

So come on [illegible]. Wintertime is colortime, too.

PICTURE OF THE WEEK. No, it's not a painted ship upon a painted ocean although the extraordinary backlighting on the waves gives that effect. The diagonal course of the schooner and the sail shadows make it an excellent composition. It's an aerial photo taken with an F 56 Aerial Camera on Ansco S.S. Aero Pan film. The exposure was 1/150 second at f 11 using a minus-blue filter. It was taken at 1:30 p.m., with the sun low enough to cast spectacular shadows but still brilliant.

1. What's the best way to mount prints?

ANSWER: Either rubber cement or dry mounting tissue will usually be found satisfactory. Rubber cement is easy to handle, it makes a fairly permanent mounting, and the print can be removed if desired. With dry mounting tissue there are no liquids to soil the print or mount. It is applied with a hot iron between the print and mount and sticks firmly to both.

2. Is it safe to wear a luminescent watch while developing negatives and making prints?

ANSWER: Although a luminescent watch definitely can expose light-sensitive material, the intensity of the luminescence is seldom sufficient to do this in ordinary dark room developing or printing. Therefore, unless it has been noticed that films or prints have been fogged for some unknown reason, it can be safely assumed that a watch of this type is not the source of any trouble.

A TIP IN TIME

Clean and wax your ferrotype trays regularly to keep the glossy surface highly polished. This will give a better finish to your prints, and prevent them from sticking. It will also keep the surface free from dust and dirt that might scratch it. These scratches are apt to show up in your glossy prints.

The practice of making test strips before final printing and enlarging can be simplified by use of the Stripmaster, produced by the Cine Pro Corporation. Five differently timed exposure strips of the same section of the negative are made on a 2¼ x 5 inch piece of photographic paper. Each strip is automatically numbered for comparison after developing and fixing.

Any item of photographic equipment from exposure meters to enlarger can be covered by insurance and it's always a good idea. The usual rate is 1 per cent of the equipment's value. A floater policy, moreover, protects the owner from loss or damage when his equipment is loaned to another.

Recipe for getting the most out of party-line service

To get the most out of your party-line telephone service — and help others get the most out of theirs, too — why not try this simple plan?

1 BE BRIEF. Try to keep all calls as short as possible.

2 BE THOUGHTFUL. If you are going to make a series of calls, allow a little time between them so that others on your line may use the telephone. Make sure the line is not in use before dialing or moving the receiver holder to signal the operator.

3 ANSWER YOUR TELEPHONE PROMPTLY. Answering your telephone promptly is a courtesy which invites similar courtesies from others.

Friendly ways like these are all it takes to make party-line service good service for every one.

REDS MAY HAVE A-BOMB

WASHINGTON. — It took hard-hitting Bob Gros of California to do what no diplomat or newsman so far has done regarding the A-bomb and Russia. He got a hint from Soviet Ambassador Novikov that Russia has either the secret of the A-bomb or an adequate defense against it.

Gros, a California lecturer who annually interviews more Washington bigwigs in 24 hours than the average newsman does in one week, called on Ambassador Novikov the other day and at the end of his interview asked: "Do you have anything you wish to say to the American people?"

"Yes," replied the ambassador. "You Americans should not rely too much on the A-bomb. Against France, Italy, Germany, yes. But against Russia, No. You should not depend on it."

"That, Mr. Ambassador," suggested Gros, "sounds as if the Russians have developed a defense against the A-bomb."

"Yes," replied Ambassador Novikov, "this and more. I do not wish to say anything further."

This significant statement ended the interview.

MORE WOMEN IN GOVERNMENT

President Truman's failure to appoint more women to high office was tactfully laid before the President by a group of women.

Mrs. La Fell Dickinson, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, headed the delegation and told Mr. Truman quite frankly that women generally were disturbed because he hadn't appointed as many women to government jobs as Mr. Roosevelt had. She reminded the President that the state department had built up a roster of 80 well-known American women capable of handling important government work and urged him to bring the list up to date.

Dr. Katherine McHale of the Association of University Women, was equally strong in urging appointment of more women to government posts.

Mr. Truman replied that he would like to appoint more women to jobs but it was difficult to get the right person for the right job.

"I watched President Roosevelt work for a long time," Truman continued. "I knew then but didn't realize fully, just how large a portion of the President's time was taken in finding the right people for the right job. I want you to know that nobody makes my appointments for me. I make them on the basis of my own judgment."

Mrs. Dickinson strongly urged appointment of a woman to the existing vacancy on the Federal Communications commission, but didn't suggest any names. The women's club leader pointed out that women make up the overwhelming majority of daytime radio listeners, yet had no representation whatever on the FCC.

Mrs. Dickinson also proposed that a woman be named assistant secretary of state, because of the enormous interest and great stake that the women of the country have in keeping the peace. Mr. Truman said the suggestion was interesting.

NO LAME-DUCK JOBS

Here's some bad news for Democratic congressmen and senators defeated in the last election who have been priming the White House for federal jobs.

President Truman has adopted a new policy — no lame-duck appointments, barring exceptional cases.

This is the story behind the [illegible] of Sen. Jim Mead's friends to [illegible] him a diplomatic post or some other top job.

Truman and Mead are old [illegible] friends, fought shoulder to shoulder in many senate battles and when Truman became vice president in 1944, Mead succeeded him as chairman of the war investigating committee. However, [illegible] times recently when White House advisers raised the question of [illegible] the able New Yorker somewhere on the federal payroll, Truman replied with a flat "no."

"If the people of a state or a congressional district have decided that they don't want a man in Washington by voting him out of office, why should I go against their judgment by appointing him to some job as a reward for being defeated?" the President said.

So far, none of Truman's advisers has thought up a good answer.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

By VIRGINIA VALE

HALF an hour spent with Edward G. Robinson is so stimulating that for days other people look pretty drab. He's been having a brief vacation in New York, after finishing "The Red House," while waiting for the script of his next picture to be prepared—as co-producer he has a special interest in both of them. "Vacation" meant seeing friends and relatives, looking at paintings, giving interviews, doing guest shots on the radio—everything but resting. "I have to come to New York about three times a year, to get re-charged," said he. Though his success on the stage was unquestioned, he's not yearning to go back; to make better and better pictures will satisfy him.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON

Katharine Hepburn, on the other hand, won't give up the theater. But whatever she does on the stage, she says, must be in the nature of a challenge, or something different from anything she's attempted before. After making "Undercurrent," with Robert Taylor, and five days later starting "The Sea of Grass," with Spencer Tracy, she too headed for a vacation, in her Connecticut home.

Barbara Britton's theme song should be "I Love a Parade"; after she rode on a float in the 1941 Tournament of Roses procession her picture appeared in a local paper, Paramount auditioned her, and the rest all out in the movies. From minor roles she worked up to the lead opposite Ray Milland in "I'll Be Seeing You Again"; she'll co-star with Randolph Scott in "Albuquerque."

Groucho Marx is afraid he may have a hit on his hands. He has a play, "The Middle Ages," which he'd like to do on the New York stage. But experts have read it and think it will have a long run. If it does, and he appears in it, that will mean that he'll have to be away from Hollywood indefinitely. He wrote it with Norman Krasna, so he may just rest on his laurels as co-author.

Mercedes McCambridge shocked everybody at a rehearsal of "The Adventures of the Thin Man" by announcing that she's quitting radio, maybe forever. She's decided to settle in the West Indies with her novelist husband, William Fifield, and John, her five-year-old son.

It's good news that Katina Paxinou is to appear in another picture; dropping her after her magnificent performance in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" was one of Hollywood's glaring mistakes. She recently returned to this country to play the role of Raymond Massey's wife in RKO's screen version of "Mourning Becomes Electra," by Eugene O'Neill. Dudley Nichols signed her. Congratulations!

Thelma Ritter had a fine reason for doubling playing "Bernice" on a recent "McGarry and His Mouse" broadcast. Last Thanksgiving she played a small role in "It's Only Human," starring Maureen O'Hara and Edmund Gwenn, when some scenes were shot in New York. When the film was developed in Hollywood her comedy scene was so funny that her role was enlarged, so she flew to the coast for new scenes.

Two of the outstanding radio programs for children are guided by men who are childless. Robert Maxwell produces the trail-blazing "Superman," and Jack Barry is the originator and moderator of the hilarious "Juvenile Jury." Maxwell's married, Barry's a bachelor.

ODDS AND ENDS—Recent reports show "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" program is fourth in listener popularity in Canada. . . . The first time Burt Lancaster ("Desert Fury") spoke stage lines was while performing in "Stars and Gripes," the army show, in Italy during the war. . . . Not only will Rosalind Russell star in her first Independent Artists production (headed by Miss Russell, her husband and Dudley Nichols) but she's also written the story, a comedy called "Madly in Love." . . . William Holden likes to don [illegible] and have a friend tow him over a [illegible] field behind a jeep.

Hot Breads Are Delicious

Whether you serve yeast breads or hot quick breads, they lend themselves graciously to winter menus. The varieties for both are numberless, and you can take your choice of spicy or fruit ones.

Hot breads are hearty foods, but they're welcome at this season both from the point of eating and the comfortable air which fills the kitchen when we make them. They have a staying quality, too, which satisfies winter-sharpened appetites.

We start the parade off with a colorful cranberry coffee ring which can be put together in a wink of time.

Cranberry Coffee Ring
(Serves 12)

1½ cups sifted flour
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ cup milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening
Cranberry orange topping

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Beat egg, add milk and shortening. Stir into dry ingredients, mixing only enough to moisten them. Spread topping evenly over bottom of greased ring mold. Pour batter over topping. Bake in a moderately hot (425 degree) oven for 25 minutes.

Cranberry orange topping: Mix together 2 tablespoons melted butter with 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, ½ cup sugar and 1½ cups of whole cranberries.

Do you want to do something special for breakfast or for lunch box sandwiches? There's nothing better than this flavorful brown sugar buttermilk bread:

Butterscotch Bread.

2 eggs
2 cups brown sugar
2 tablespoons melted shortening
4 cups flour
1½ teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups sour or buttermilk
1 cup chopped walnut meats

Beat eggs, add sugar and shortening and beat well together. Sift flour, soda and baking powder together with salt and add to egg mixture, alternately with milk. Blend in nuts. Pour into greased loaf pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 45 minutes.

There's nothing so nice for a special breakfast, dinner or luncheon as a sugar-saving cinnamon roll recipe. When it's baked and glistening golden brown, frost it until it looks lacy with a powdered sugar and milk icing if you want it to be especially glamorous.

Cinnamon Rolls.
(Makes 3 dozen)

1 cup milk
2 cakes yeast
¾ cup extra-sweet, white corn syrup
2 teaspoons salt

Heat milk to scalding; cool to lukewarm; add yeast and let stand 5 minutes to soften. Cream together the extra-sweet corn syrup, salt, shortening, nutmeg and extract. Add egg and beat thoroughly. Add milk mixture and flour alternately, mixing until smooth after each addition. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Knead lightly on floured surface. Let dough rest 15 minutes. Roll ½ inch thick, sprinkle with cinnamon sugar and raisins, as desired. Roll as for jelly roll and slice with a sharp knife. Place in greased cake pan. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) about 20 minutes.

If you like coffee cake made in fancy shapes, you'll like the following, which is just as festive and tasty as possible.

(Makes 2 cakes)

2 packages yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup melted shortening
5 cups sifted flour
Cinnamon sugar

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add 2 cups flour. Mix well. Add softened yeast, eggs and lemon rind. Beat well. Add shortening. Mix well. Add more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down. Use one-third of dough to make a coffee cake. Cover remaining two-thirds and place in refrigerator to use for coffee cake or rolls.

Let dough which you have left out rest for 10 to 15 minutes. Roll into a rectangle sheet about 18 inches long and 8 inches wide. Spread with melted butter and sprinkle with cinnamon sugar. Roll up as for jelly roll and seal at the edges. Place on greased baking sheet and shape into a figure eight, then seal ends at intersection. With scissors, cut slanted gashes in top of roll 2 to 3 inches apart. Fold back points of cuts to show cinnamon layers. Let rise until doubled in bulk.

Bake coffee cake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 25 to 30 minutes. Frost with confectioners' sugar icing after baking and cooling slightly, if desired.

Any type of fruit filling may be used with the above coffee cake: Raisins, either alone or with chopped apples, prunes, figs, nuts, apricots, peaches and pears, or dried, candied fruit.

JADE RESTAURANT

Delicious Chinese and American Foods

Traditionally famous as one of the most popular centers for the choicest of meals the JADE RESTAURANT located in nearby Malden, at 152 Pleasant street, opposite the Malden Electric Company, telephone Malden 7232, is today upholding those traditions which have made it popular with all who have enjoyed their appetizing dishes and prevailing hospitality.

Indeed, it may be said that lovers of good food have one thing in common—they know where the best in these specialties can be obtained. And because of this, this good-going eating establishment has always enjoyed a large patronage among the discriminating people throughout this section of the state.

It is seldom that one comes into contact with real honest-to-goodness Chinese and American cooking—the sort that we are led to believe that Grandmother prepared—but here, they really do take pleasure in taking pains to achieve a quality of the culinary art in the preparation of their appetizing dishes which grandmother might well feel proud of.

Newly renovated and enlarged, and for the convenience of the public, a fine air-conditioning system, this establishment is sparklingly clean and a more attractively furnished restaurant it would indeed be difficult to find anywhere, and there is none to our mind which merits a greater measure of popularity. Graceful service, and pleasant hospitality add to its distinctiveness and charm.

At the JADE RESTAURANT it matters not whether your order be large or small, even though it may be orders to take out, you are made to feel at home and that you are always welcome here. It is easy to see how in such a congenial atmosphere one can enjoy the well cooked, fresh Chinese and American foods that are served here.

With everything carefully supervised by the capable management, this excellent restaurant is rendering this high type of service to an appreciative public, everyone being catered to in a manner that bespeaks of a sincere desire to serve at all times. And so, in commending the management of the JADE RESTAURANT upon the manner in which it is always conducted, we want to recommend this place to all our readers as well worthy of your patronage whenever you are seeking something different in food.

DR. SIDNEY S. SHER

Optometrist

Dr. Sidney S. Sher, with offices located at 478 Main street, opposite Strand Theatre in Cosmos Bldg., in nearby Woburn, is providing one of the really indispensible services to the people throughout this entire area, in the scientific treatment of eyesight troubles. Since the purpose of this Review is to present the many invaluable services available to our readers by representatives in many fields of endeavor, we feel that prominent mention should be given to this most important profession, and to one who has proven to be most efficient in it.

Eyesight is one of man's most precious possessions, and no attention is too great in striving to preserve it. Toward this end, Dr. Sidney S. Sher's services have been of invaluable assistance to many of our citizens ever since he established his practice here.

Defective vision so prevalent among children today has been a field in which his efforts have proven particularly effective. Many grateful mothers can testify to this fact, and many a child normal in every other respect, although hampered by poor vision has been given greater confidence in his or herself because of this doctor's abilities, and has thereby been enabled to progress more rapidly in school work.

Dr. Sidney S. Sher has made a thorough study of this important phase of optometry and is well qualified by both training and experience to give accurate, comfortable vision. In addition he is always pleased to help you select those glasses most becoming and in accord with the prevailing mode of the day. Therefore we suggest that if you are having any trouble with your eyes, to by all means stop in and consult with this reliable practitioner before it becomes too serious or more difficult to correct. Just telephone Woburn 0777-R before making your visit and you will be assured of a prompt appointment, either during the day or evening.

In this Review we are pleased to commend Dr. Sidney S. Sher upon the excellent results which have characterized his work in behalf of many of the people of this section of the state, and trust that his career of service will continue to be of a similarly effective nature for many more years to come.

JACK AND JILL SHOP

Infants' and Small Children's Wear

It is our candid opinion that a business review of the necessary and better services available to the public in this area, would be entirely lacking without prominent mention being made of an establishment, which has gained the goodwill and confidence not only of the people in the community where they are located, but also throughout the surrounding communities as well.

The JACK AND JILL SHOP, located in nearby Woburn, at 309 Main Street, telephone Woburn 2589-W, is the firm of which we are speaking. It is one thing to be highly thought of by their patrons, because of the excellent products which they sell here, but when in addition that firm also insists on their prices always being fair, and not over-priced, then that concern really deserves the consideration of the entire community.

Specializing in infants' and children's wear, Mrs. Mary Mackey, the proprietor, has always insisted on the very finest in this line, before buying it herself and offering it to her trade. As a matter of fact, we do not believe there is any other concern in any large city or town that has a finer display and a better grade of goods, nor at lesser prices, than this good-going establishment, the JACK AND JILL SHOP.

We feel sure that when you enter this store, you will be delighted with the styles and the qualities of these product. You will also enjoy making the acquaintenance of Mrs. Mackey, as she is always willing and patient in aiding you in making your selections.

We take this opportunity of wishing the JACK AND JILL SHOP continued success and in referring our readers here, we know that as long as Mrs. Mackey continues to serve the public it will aid greatly in making this area a much better trading center.

The insurance business today is a highly specialized field in which one is successful not so much because of one's aggressiveness, as in years gone by, but rather upon one's knowledge and readiness to serve in this important profession. Then, too, the success of any business is measured by many of us in dollars and cents, but when a firm has attained that success because of good honest service to their clients, it is this writer's honest opinion that such a firm certainly merits the esteem of its neighbors. In this respect we know that many of our citizens who have had dealings with LUTHER W. We feel sure that you can drop into this office at almost any time, and without any obligation to yourself, and without any thought of profit upon their part, they would be pleased to advise you and make a survey and an analysis of your policies and your present needs.

CAMERACRAFT STUDIO

"Distinctive Portraits and Photographs"

We wonder how many of the people throughout this section of the state are aware of the finer services which are available to them in this highly specialized field of photography. We have in mind the CAMERACRAFT STUDIO, located in nearby Reading, at 189 Haven street, telephone Reading 0465, one who has very definitely won the regard and esteem of all who have availed themselves of their excellent services.

When one speaks of photographs, one usually thinks along the lines of just ordinary pictures. On the other hand, we believe that when an individual mentions portraits, it is distinctively understood that this is an art all in itself. Therefore, those of us who are keenly aware of this firm's beautiful work as pertaining to portraits and photographs, are of the opinion that here in our own community, we have one of the finest in this particular profession, and it gives us a real pleasure to mention these few facts.

Of course, photographs, and especially beautiful portraits, are always welcome to our loved ones and friends, no matter as a gift for birthday graduation, wedding or any other occasion, and many of our readers would do well to look into this fine gift sentiment, a beautiful lasting gift in every sense of the word. Then, too, all of us must go at some time or other, and what is more suitable to remember your loved one by, than a fine portrait? Many of us realize this fact, but we keep putting off doing this until often times it is too late, which is regrettable. Why not make it a point to contact the CAMERACRAFT STUDIO and have suitable arrangements made? You will find that they are not only fair in their charges, but also because of their fine equipment and complete study of this phase of photography, they are able to guarantee every piece of work to your entire satisfaction. An interesting fact, too, is that both Mr. George R. Patterson and Mr. William J. Ginevicz, the proprietors of this firm, are veterans of the last war, and what is most interesting is the fact that Mr. Patterson was a Navy photographer and Mr. Ginevicz was an Army photographer.

We want to commend these fine artists upon their excellent workmanship and we trust that they will continue to serve our residents for many years to come.

The materials used by Charles C. Nicholson are the latest scientific development in the roofing and siding world, having answered all the tests, including the tests of weather and time. There are many reasons why the finished jobs of this concern last longer and, in addition, represent an appearance from an architectural stand-point which is very pleasing to even the most critical individual. We, therefore, do not see any good reason, why, in this section of the state where there will shortly be so much construction and remodeling work going on that this firm should be called upon and kept busy right here in our own area at all times.

In addition to their activities in general carpentry work, they have covered many of the roofs and sidewalls in this section of the state and their work has met with the full approval of the purchasers in every case. To anyone interested, Mr. Nicholson can give many fine references and will show you the roofs and sidewalls as they stand today, just as good as new. We are particularly pleased to be able to present to our readers, an account of the activities of one who is doing so much in effectively relieving the distress and suffering of those afflicted with foot troubles. Many of us are aware of the fact, through painful experience, that the condition of the feet is of the utmost importance to our physical, and in turn, to our mental well-being and efficiency. Those, whose work make it necessary for them to be on their feet for long periods each day, are susceptible to several types of foot ailments, the effects of which vary all the way from discomfort to actual torture.

But the necessity of continued sufferings is now a thing of the past, for the developments of science, devised after years of study and experimentation by the medical profession in all parts of the world, have produced the means to allay all pain and bring blessed relief to foot sufferers everywhere.

Here in Winchester, we are fortunate in having a well-known Chiropodist and Podiatrist, Dr. Ruth A. ESSEX ACADEMY OF BEAUTY CULTURE

Sam Guiliano, Director

Perhaps more than anything else in the world, it is the desire of all women to be beautiful. To the beauty of Helen of Troy has been attributed the launching of a thousand ships, and the historic charm of Cleopatra has come down to us as surpassing all description. The pages of history are replete with the accounts of women who have swayed the fates of empires with their comeliness of face and figure. We do not know for certain upon what standards beauty was judged in those early days, but it would seem that it was by no means a common attribute of all women.

Today, however, all women can be attractive through beauty culture and the American girl through the medium of the silver screen, has become the exemplar of feminine pulchritude the world over.

This is just to prove what an important industry beauty culture has become. In this respect, we are pleased to bring to the attention of our readers in this Business Review a service which is essentially fine, one which the ESSEX ACADEMY OF BEAUTY CULTURE has to offer. Located in nearby Lynn, at 8 City Hall Square, telephone, Lynn 2-9882, this Academy is fulfilling in a most capable manner the needs of this profession by supplying individuals adequately trained in this highly specialized business.

The beauty trade has always been a profitable one, and even in bad times a good beautician is always pretty certain of her position commanding a good salary. Such security is the aim of every ambitious young person, and many individuals throughout this area have taken advantage of the fine courses offered at this outstanding school of beauty culture.

The ESSEX ACADEMY OF BEAUTY CULTURE is thoroughly well equipped—as a matter of fact, the finest in New England, and with expert professional instructors at their command, there is in our opinion no reason under the sun why any of our readers who may be thinking of what line of work to take up, should not take advantage of this wonderful service, which is being rendered right here in our section of the state.

We want to take this opportunity of commending Mr. Sam Guiliano, the Director of this school, upon the fine institution which he has seen fit to guide for the benefit of our citizens, and we very definitely recommend to our readers to by all means contact this fine Academy of beauty culture at your earliest possible moment, and we are sure that you will never have any regrets.

SMART — FORM CORSET SHOP

Mrs. Constance S. Joslin, Proprietor

In presenting the various outstanding services available to the public, we would very much be lacking in our duties to the ladies, if we did not include in this Review this new shop, which is not only far superior in this type of work, but one which is really in a class by itself in this highly specialized field of corset fitting—important because of the fact that if an individual is improperly fitted, that individual can be made decidedly uncomfortable, unbecoming and possibly be injured.

The SMART—FORM CORSET SHOP, located in Winchester, in the Hevey Building, Room 2-A, telephone Winchester 0871-M, is really an outlet for the well-known Barclay Smart Form products, from which this establishment takes its name. However, we are pleased to state that it is privately owned by Mrs. Constance S. Joslin, and is doing a swell job in fitting individually designed corsets and brassieres to their ever-growing list of customers.

There is truly a complete service to women of all shapes and sizes. They carry at all times a fine line of stock and maternity garments, and also can fit you to proper surgical garments. Then, too, special attention is given to growing girls, and this is certainly a most important phase for the welfare of these young ladies, in building a correct and comfortable physique.

Fair in their charges, and above board in their dealings, this establishment deserves the support and the excellent reputation which they are building for themselves because of their reliable methods.

We, therefore, are pleased to commend Mrs. Joslin, the proprietor of the SMART-FORM CORSET SHOP because of her fine services and excellent judgment in this important field, and we are very definitely recommend this firm's services and products to our readers as well worthy of your fullest consideration.
